STUDENT BODY TURNS OUT

It was really good to see the student body turn out for the dedication ceremonies last Thursday. Despite the discomfort of the prankish cold day, delayed meals and longevity, an impressive number of the hardier stock "stuck it out" from the band's peppy beginning to the singing of the Alma Mater.

It was also good to see the obvious enjoyment participants and viewers had in getting together for the "auspicious occasion." It isn't often that such a large number of the university and state leaders convene as they did here that day. It was impossible to keep from having a greater sense of belonging to a really significantly expanding and important university program after listening to the comments presented.

WE SALUTE—

High on the "WE SALUTE" list for the year are two of UTMB's favorite Home Economics people—Miss Mary Rachel Armstrong, department head, and Melba Whitesides, home ec student.

Added to an already impressive list of honors for these two is their recent selection as heads of their respective state home economics organizations for college teachers and students.

It is with much pride and respect that we at UTMB recognize them as deserving of these and all other honors that will come their way.

INDIVIDUALITY, SELF-RESTRAINT NEEDED

Our best pals—or maybe it was someone we didn't even know—was caught taking another fellow's possessions. We were shocked and hurt; and we just couldn't understand why. Even they couldn't explain it. Everyone could "suppose" an answer, but no shoe seemed to fit everyone concerned.

In the same bewilderment we wondered "why" some other things, similar though not so notorious, were taking place around us. Often disciplinary action had to be taken and we began to wonder then, just where discipline fits into these problems facing us and our friends.

We by nature rebel against discipline from the time Mother says "Don't touch that, dear!" We're afraid restraint will make us "miss something that's fun" or "let out."

Self-discipline isn't quite so obvious, but it isn't quite so easily carried out as hoped by some either. It appears to be easier to "not mess out" and "hang on the a part" than to exert the effort to say "No, that's" and show a little individuality and self-reliance.

It comes as sort of a shock, too, when we hear some of this "individualized" talk. At times we react to it respectfully at others, "not so much."

In the following statement an individual has perhaps given us a few reasons "why"—a partial answer to our lack of understanding:

"I choose the disciplined life. I will speak with clearness and sincerity. I will not descend to cheap, shovely or gossip talk. The words that pass my lips shall be deliberately chosen for beauty and kindness and truth.

"I choose the disciplined life. I would like to use my leisure moments and extra money in creative ways. I shall not squander even nickels on excessive pleasure. My time, energy and money are limited and I dare not waste them on vulgarity or triviality.

"I choose the life of disciplines that Jesus lived. The people about him needed his creative consciousness so that Jesus did not care to lose himself in any artificial stimulants. As his follower, I find so much to think and do and be that I have no wish to squander any of life-consciousness in drunkenness, looseness, extravagance, indulgence.

"I choose the disciplined life. I will so conduct my friendships and dates that love may find me worthy of a true marriage and beautiful home. I do not wish to be partner to the cheapening of the love experience of another. Selfless love is a method of life according to Jesus. And while I shall love deeply and broadly I shall express it truly and beautifully."

MATHEMATICAL PHENOMENON

Situation: Tuesday night some students in search of disposals for the trash they had accumulated during their evening's entertainment just gave up and deposited it in front of the girls' dorm. Most other nights it seems it winds up in front of the men's dorms.

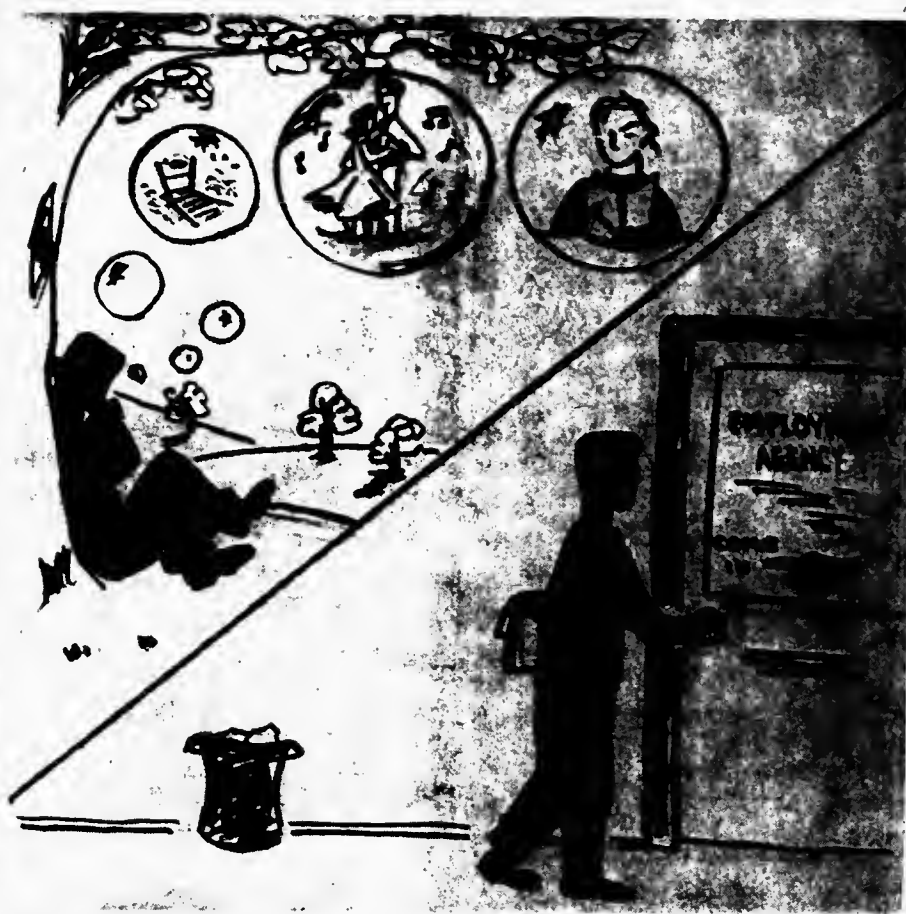

Problem: If Bottles = Cans = Contents = Trash

Then Campus = Trash = ?????

Possible Solutions:

- (1) More trash cans conveniently placed? or
- (2) Roving midnight garbage trucks? or
- (3) Finding out why "Bottles = Cans = Contents necessary? or
- (4) Encouraging substitution for making trash?

Comes the Final, Final Exam

VOLETTE IS 'BREW' FROM MELTING POT

A school paper might be compared with a mixing pot resting on a tripod—the people which it reaches in this case being the tripod the paper is dependent on. This dependence is for subject material for articles, opinions which determine what those articles will be, and often for help in getting out the paper.

That first leg of the tripod has really done its part this year at UTMB in furnishing supporting materials through honors earned, initiative in carrying out new activities, and general participation in a multitude of events which have strengthened participants, the school, and the paper.

The "opinion leg" has been somewhat shaky at times—either because comments were withheld or not inspired. At any rate, it is hoped that through a "shot" of letters or "exercise" of constructive commentaries that this leg will be brought up to par next year with increased interest in "what's going on or what could be going on."

Especially gratifying to the "melting pot" has been the extra support given by the other leg of the tripod. Contributions both in the area of journalism and the production and distribution line from this source has often meant whether or not the paper would be out on time.

This is really a round-about-way of saying "Thanks" to those of you who've made publishing THE VOLETTE a rewarding challenge to the members of the staff. We always appreciate your encouragement.

Miss Armstrong Will Head THEA In 1960

Miss Mary Rachel Armstrong, head of the Home Economics Department at the University of Tennessee at Martin, has been elected president of the Tennessee Home Economics Association for the two-year term beginning in April, 1960.

Miss Armstrong, president elect, will serve as voting delegate for the state organization at the American Home Economics Association meeting to be held in Milwaukee, Wis., June 23-29.

Election of the 1960-62 officers of the THEA was conducted at the annual convention held recently in Nashville. Anderson Is Named Volunteer Editor

Don Anderson, a junior in education, has been named editor of the UTMB Volunteer for 1959-60. Anderson has been active in campus affairs during his three years at UTMB. He was recently named head of the Baptist Student Union for next year.

Mrs. Mildred Payne, assistant professor of English, will serve as sponsor of the 1959-60 annual. Mrs. Payne, who has had previous experience sponsoring school publications, joined the UTMB English staff in 1955.

Y. F. And H.'ers Go To National Festival

Nineteen members of the Young Farmers and Homemakers Club represented the University of Tennessee, Martin Branch, at the National Folk Festival held in Nashville Wednesday, May 6.

The group demonstrated singing games to the coliseum audience and fellow participants at the national affair.

The Y. F. & H.'ers, decked out in early settler type costumes performed at both the afternoon and evening performances of the five day event.

Prior to participating in the National Folk Festival this same group took part in the West Tennessee Folk Festival held at UTMB April 25, sponsored by the Young Farmers and Homemakers Club in connection with the Physical Education Department. The singing games group was joined by thirty-nine other acts in the UTMB gymnasium to make this initial festival a success.

The nation's gold mines produced only 1,736,352 ounces in 1958. The output was worth $60,800,000, a drop of three per cent from 1957.

UTMB's Float Called Strawberry Favorite

The UTMB entry in the strawberry festival was acclaimed as one of the outstanding in this year's parade. It was pointed out by the Nashville Tennessean as the Strawberry Favorite.

The float, an entirely new and unique design at UTMB, was built under the direction of Mr. Lige Culvahouse of the Ag Department and designed by Miss Aaltje Van Denburg of the Home Economics Department.

The float was built on the shape of a heart with Queen Mary Harding riding in the center, and her attendants, Harriett Gibbs, Glenda Templeton and Johnie Alexander at her feet. The float was 13 feet 6 inches high and almost 16 feet wide where the arrow went through the heart. It was one of the largest floats, over-all, in the parade.

Ag Club members who worked on the float were Mark Farrar, George Gossett, Barry Simmons, Danny Kerr, Harold Rowland, Gene Wimberley, and Buck Scarborough.

Home Ec 421 Goes To Its New Home

By ELEANOR GRESHAM
Latest of the expanding physical plant of the University of Tennessee at Martin to be occupied is the recently completed Home Economics Home Management House. This new Southern Colonial residence is occupied by students enrolled in Home Management 421, a required course in the curriculum.

Blending with the other buildings on campus, "The House" is a two-story structure, planned in detail to feature many modern conveniences, including a laundry room with washer, dryer, and ironer. Other rooms downstairs include a spacious living room with an eye-catching array of bookshelves in blonde paneling and a picture window; a sun porch with TV; a dining room with a suite of commodious ten persons; a kitchen with stainless steel cabinets, dish washer, refrigerator-freezer, disposal and snack bar; and quarters for the home management teacher and advisor, Miss Vera Burnette. Upstairs are four bedrooms with twin beds and desks, as well as linen closets. One of the most outstanding conveniences is the vast amount of storage space including walk-in closets, shelves, and cabinets.

The color scheme includes basic beige with accents of blues and rose. The draperies, constructed by the students, blend with the color scheme, being in tints of beige and blue.

The seniors enrolled in the course include Joyce Vineyard, Anna Dodd, Marie Wilson, Mary Ann Baxter, Ann Roney, Eleanor Gresham, Nancy Jo Doran, Emily McClain, and Rosemary Turner. They rotate such duties as host, hostess, waitress, maid, housekeeper, cook, assistant cook, and guest, learning in a practical manner what's actually involved in carrying on activities in a home. Here they put into practice the results of the culmination of their knowledge of courses throughout their four years of study at UTMB.

Gratitude is expressed to all who played a part in this fulfillment of another dream of our University—those who planned, as well as those who actually constructed "The House."

A spacious living room for entertaining guests is furnished as comfortably as one's own home, and the residents of the house frequently entertain. Here (left to right) Marie Wilson, Mary Ann Baxter, Joyce Vineyard, and Miss Vera Burnette catch up on the latest news, while enjoying conversation.

Preparation of meals for the ten occupants of the Practice House is made more enjoyable with modern equipment. Emily McClain (left) hands Nancy Jo Doran a delectable dish through the convenient sliding window between kitchen and dining room, while Anne Roney stirs up another at the electric range.

Bedrooms feature twin beds, desks, and dressers, and they soon become "home". Rosemary Turner (left) checks records of grocery and supply purchases as Anna Dodd looks on, while Eleanor Gresham tunes in some relaxing music.

Stewart-Band-Chorus Give Combo Program 'Beat Generation'

A variety musical program was presented at UTMB gym Tuesday evening, May 19, at 8 o'clock.

The program was sponsored by the music department and included selections by the chorus and the band. Feature of the evening was a piano performance by Robert Stewart, UTMB instructor in piano.

The first part of the program featured vocal groups from the chorus. Included were a male group singing "Joshua Fit the Battle of Jericho" and "There's Nothing Like a Dame"; a girls ensemble singing "Tea for Two", "Softly As in a Morning Sunrise," and "Dancing in the Dark." The girls' chorus presented a number of songs and the choral part of the program concluded with a mixed chorus arrangement of "It's a Big, Wide, Wonderful World."

Second on the program was the performance by Mr. Stewart of the ever-popular CONCERTO by Grieg. Miss Harriet Fulton accompanied Mr. Stewart at a second piano.

The third part of the program featured the college band under the direction of Ed Turney. The band played six selections, two of which featured Billy Clendenin on the clarinet and Keith Johnson on the trombone.

By JIM JINKINS and GERON BROWN

The "beat generation" was the subject of a talk by Mr. Byington at the meeting of the Literary Club May 19. His penetrating and interesting analysis probed the history, significance and possible future of a literary movement about which much has been said but very little known.

Many of the audience were surprised to find that the "literary beats" and "ivy league desperados" which Mr. Byington mentioned were not the true beat generation. Kerouac, Ginsberg and a number of other writers are in a class that separates them from their followers who get write-ups in Life, Time, This Week and other popular magazines. Mr. Byington compared the beat philosophy to the nineteenth century Romantic Revolt of Emerson, Thoreau and the Concord Transcendentalists. They are anti-Christian, anti-materialist mystics. The development of the beats from their frantic hypersensual beginnings to their present search for the truth through Ten Buddhism was compared with the Transcendentalist movement.

UTMB Annuals Will Be Available May 26

The 1959 annual for UTMB is scheduled to arrive on the campus May 26. The theme of this annual is "Story of the Year by Seasons." It is quite large with about 260 pages. It has one new feature that has not been used at UTMB before. This is a two page spread in natural color of the campus.

There is still time to reserve a copy of the annual at the Bursar's office, according to staff members. It is hoped that there will be a few annuals for anyone who does not reserve one; but to be on the safe side, if one plans to get an annual one should make a reservation now.

There is an awards dinner scheduled for the members of the annual staff on May 25. At this dinner, fourteen members of the staff will be awarded annual pins.

A new sponsor has been selected for the annual next year. Mrs. Mildred Payne of the English department will take over the job while Mr. Campbell is on leave of absence to do graduate work at the University of Illinois.

Eat More Lamb; Says UTMB Ag Group

By MELVIN HUMPHREYS

As of late, the National Sheep Grower's Council has been encouraging more consumption of lamb into our daily diets. Statistically we only consume three pounds of lamb as compared to 83 pounds of beef and 60 pounds of pork per person per year. Paradoxically Tennessee is one of the good production areas, yet we only consume an average of 1 pound of lamb each year.

The lamb is a small animal and has delicious, choice, small cuts whereas the beef animal is larger and usually harder for the small family to get rid of. Contrary to the popular belief that lamb smells and has a poor taste, the aggies of the Livestock Production can testify against this.

Members of the Agriculture 422, Livestock Production class thoroughly enjoyed a lamb dinner prepared by the Home Economics Foods classes on May 7, 1959.

These two classes respectively, making studies of the consumption and preparation of lamb, cooperated in carrying a lamb from 'Hoof-to-Table'.

The aggies actually participated in raising, slaughtering and butchering the lamb while the Foods classes prepared the meal consisting of Roast Lamb, baked potatoes, green beans, combination salad, ice tea, hot rolls and strawberry shortcake.

This was the first time for many of the class members to ever eat lamb, and all found it very tasty. It was found that lamb can be one of the best meats that can be served if properly prepared.

We suggest that you try lamb and you might want to add it to your list of meats to eat in 1959.

Seaweed meal, used experimentally in animal feed, has been found to increase milk and egg production. Sheep produced more lambs and better wool, turkey mortality was reduced and pigs fattened up faster with seaweed in their diet.

Mary Lou Harding To Represent UTMB

Mary Lou Harding, Miss UTMB for 1958-59, is making plans for a busy summer.

The first event in which Mary Lou will represent UTMB will be the Miss Tennessee contest for the Miss Universe competition. This will be held in Dyersburg on June 12-13, and contestants will be judged for beauty in a formal and in a swim suit.

Mary Lou will add talent to her beauty when she tries for the honor of representing Tennessee in the Miss America Pageant, Jackson will be the scene of this contest from July 22-25.

About 40 girls will be competing in both of these contests, and Mary Lou should be stiff competition in a long white formal and a white bathing suit.

Not only will she be representing UTMB this summer, but she will be carrying out duties as Paris Fish-Fry host princess. These will consist mainly of tours of Henry County, Paris, and the lake area.

All of this has come about since Mary Lou was selected Miss UTMB on February 17 in competition with 17 other girls representing campus organizations.

Elam Says UTMB Is Essential To University System

President Brehm Accepts Administration Building At Dedication Ceremonies

The Martin branch of the University of Tennessee is important and essential to the fulfillment of the mission of the university, declared Tom Elam at last week's dedication ceremonies for the new $650,000 Administration Building.

Elam, Union City attorney and a trustee of the university, delivered the principal address. The program took place on the campus in front of the new building.

Speakers pointed out that since 1951, when the Martin institution was converted from a junior college to an integral part of the university, enrollment has risen from 400 to 1,168 during the current school year.

On a conservative basis, UTMB officials predict an enrollment of 1,500 at Martin by 1965.

Elam, in his address, said that "the old administration building was built 59 years ago when the school was known as Hall-Moody college and was sponsored by the Baptist church. This building became a part of the University of Tennessee in 1927 and has been used as the administration building until the present. The building will continue to be used for music, drama and other courses at UTMB."

The University of Tennessee has become one of the great educational institutions of the country since 1900 when the U-T total enrollment was 400. UTMB now ranks 13th in size among the 43 colleges and universities in the state, Elam said.

He also spoke with praise of Dean Paul Meek, executive officer of UTMB, of the legislators, particularly of West Tennessee, who have supported UTMB, and of Dr. C. E. Brehm, U-T president whom he termed a "great educator."

Elam concluded his address by saying: "The University of Tennessee is perpetual and will be a factor in this state as long as time lasts. Its campus is the state of Tennessee."

"The University carries forward always the proud banner of a proud state in the classroom, on the gridiron, in commerce, in agriculture and in industry. It is as the name suggests, Tennessee."

After James Henson had sung the national anthem and Dr. C. N. Jolley had delivered the invocation, Dr. Brehm opened the program by introducing a long list of legislators and prominent men of West Tennessee.

Dr. Brehm emphasized that the quality of work at UTMB is fully on a par with that of other units of the university.

U-T trustee Ben Douglass of Lexington said "We have just begun to build at UTMB." He also made mention of a rumored proposal to change the name of the school from the University of Tennessee, Martin Branch, to the University of Tennessee at Martin. This brought a hearty applause from students and visitors in the audience.

Dean Meek outlined the purposes of the new building, explaining that it will house the UTMB business offices, the educational department, the business administration department, the English department, and some portions of the home economics department.

The building was formally presented by trustee Wayne Fisher of Dresden and was formally accepted by Dr. Brehm. The program closed with the singing of the "Tennessee Alma Mater," led by Mr. Henson. A barbecue luncheon was served in the assembly room of the new building.

Reed Hallers Mauled 38-22

The Engineer's Club, sparked by the great rebounding of Martin Shoffner and Truett Tilghman, scored an easy 38-22 victory over Reed Hall, Monday night in the UTMB gym. Sparked by a brilliant 14-0 first half, the agile engineers were in the lead all the way.

Early in the second half the Reed Hallers staged their fruitless comeback with two successive baskets by Morgan Fields and another by Joe Kelly. But two quick baskets by Gene Virgin, one each by Ronald Pace, Jimmy Harper, and Shoffner put the game on ice for the engineers.

Shoffner, who added 10 points to the cause, also finished the game with 18 rebounds. His splendid floor play and quick thinking, led directly to many engineer's baskets.

Tilghman, although getting only six points, proved to be the difference between the two teams with his aggressive shot blocking and rebounding.

T Club Holds Outing At Reelfoot Lake

Reelfoot Lake was the scene of the Annual T Club outing on Saturday, May 16, as thirty-six members, guests, sponsors, and chapcrones enjoyed boating, and swimming. The brisk day prevented too vigorous a swimming program, but baseball and visiting added to the afternoon's activities.

Dinner at Boyette's climaxed the day with fish, chicken, ham, and all the trimmings; thus another year's activities fittingly came to a close.
